Mr. H

Epigram

- An epigram is a short, pithy saying, usually in verse, often with a quick, satirical twist at the end. The subject is usually a single thought or event

“The best way to predict the future is to invent it.”

Motif

- A motif is a recurring symbol which takes on a figurative meaning. A motif can be almost anything: an idea, an object, a concept, a character archetype, the weather, a color or even a statement.

Metonymy

- It is a figure of speech that replaces the name of a thing with the name of something else with which it is closely associated. We can come across examples of metonymy both from literature and in everyday life.

Metonymy

- England decides to keep check on immigration. (England refers to the government.)
- The suits were at meeting. (The suits stand for business people.)
- The pen is mightier than the sword. (Pen refers to written words and sword to military force.)
- The Oval Office was busy in work. (“The Oval Office” is a metonymy as it stands for people at work in the office.)
- Let me give you a hand. (Hand means help.)

Archetype

- The term "archetype" has its origins in ancient Greek. The root words are archein, which means "original or old"; and typos, which means "pattern, model or type"
- These are common character types that are very common in books and movies

Allusion

- Allusion is a brief and indirect reference to a person, place, thing or idea of historical, cultural, literary or political significance. It does not describe in detail the person or thing to which it refers. It is just a passing comment and the writer expects the reader to possess enough knowledge to spot the allusion and grasp its importance in a text.

Allusion

- For instance, you make a literary allusion the moment you say, “I do not approve of this quixotic idea,”
- Quixotic means stupid and impractical derived from Cervantes’s “Don Quixote”, a story of a foolish knight and his misadventures.

Subtext

- Subtext is the unspoken thoughts and motives of characters—what they really think and believe.

“You got my text...but did you get my subtext?”

Subtext

- Subtext is also a frequently used method of subtly inserting social or political commentary into fiction

Connotation

- Connotation refers to a meaning that is implied by a word apart from the thing which it describes explicitly. Words carry cultural and emotional associations or meanings in addition to their literal meanings or denotations.
- For instance, “Wall Street” literally means a street situated in Lower Manhattan but connotatively it refers to “wealth” and “power”.

Denotation

- Denotation is generally defined as literal or dictionary meanings of a word in contrast to its connotative or associated meanings.

DENOTATION IS THE LITERAL MEANING:

“You are a dog” means that you are literally a canine.

Connotation is the implied or suggested meaning:

“You are a dog” suggests that you are ugly or morally detestable.
